

Students from Across Alaska Use Live Homework Help Every Day

In 2004, the Alaska State Library and the Alaska Library Network launched Live Homework Help. Since 2004, more than 186,000 students have worked online with tutors to complete their school assignments.

Gov. Walker's FY2018 budget includes $138,200 for Live Homework Help.

What It Offers

- Online access to high quality tutors with expertise in math, science, social studies and writing
- One on one tutor assistance, so each student gets exactly the help they need when they need it
- Available 7 days a week from noon to 2am to schools, homes and colleges in Alaska

Some Student Comments from Nov. and Dec. 2016

"My tutor exceeded my expectations in every way. He was patient, thorough, and detailed when explaining things to me. He did not rush me during the session and was very helpful at giving hints. Thank you for offering this service with brilliant tutors to help some of us struggling with courses such as physics."

College Student

"I have a 95% in my college math class due to the help I got here! It's great to have tutors help me go over problems!" College Student

"This one tutor has had such an impact on my chemistry knowledge! I have my final exam tomorrow and I am MORE THAN READY!" College Student

"I appreciate the fact that after each step, the tutor would ask if I had any questions. Thank you for taking the time to help me with my two problems. And thank you Alaska State Library for this service. It's been a lifesaver for me in my physics course." College Student
